Wide Assortment Of Displays Shown At Edgewood Fair

The Edgewood Community Fair, in which Reynoldstown and Hoopersville are taking part, opened Monday night and will continue through the week.

Since Monday, the streets about the fairground have been thronged with exhibitors and patrons and the exhibits of pickles, jellies, handwork, flowers, home-canned fruits, pigeons and rabbits have attracted hundreds. The counters in the store building, owned by the Crawford Grocery Company, are lined with beautiful quilts, sofa pillows and soft plush quilts.

A short talk by Rev. G. T. Foley opened the fair. He praised the company which had helped to make it a success along with the Urgan League. O average people this is "just another tablecloth"-L beautiful, of course, but no different from other lace cloths. It is the particular lace-so rare in workmanship and design as to be almost priceless-which makes the difference.

To average people, also, Pebeco is "just another tooth paste"-effective, of course, but not substantially different from others. They do not know that it contains a substance not found in others, an ingredient so helpful to the teeth that it puts Pebeco quite definitely in a class by itself.

This expensive ingredient (comprising 40% of every tube, but too costly for other tooth pastes to use) makes its presence known by a distinctive tingling sensation a tang which confirms the fact that Pebeco is at work.

Pebeco is not doctored with pleasant but useless flavors or loaded with foaming soap. Its formula is businesslike-designed to give your teeth the help they need.

If you are a person of discernment—capable of realizing this difference, you will join the unswerving circle of Pebeco users today.

Decrease in Working Time Would Relieve Unemployment, Publisher

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 28.—(R)—
W. T. Anderson, publisher of the Macon Telegraph and the Macon News, tonight advocated a six-hour day to relieve unemployment in the United States.

Speaking before an inter-city meeting of Rotary clubs here, Mr. Anderson said a decrease in the number of working hours for labor from eight to six would mean that the present available work would go around among the workers.

Mr. Anderson reviewed the speeding up of industry during the World War and the employment of women in factories and other businesses. He pointed to $25,000,000,000 in municipal, state and government bonds he said had been issued since the war that kept production up and workers employed.

New labor-saving machines and the return of men after the war boosted the normal 1,000,000 unemployed in the United States to 5.000,000, the Macon publisher said. He then advocated shorter working hours to take care of the overflow.

The waste and readjustment caused by the war, added to the revolutionizing effect upon industry of labor-saving machinery was blamed by Mr. Anderson for the present economic let-down. He said, however, that "the gates of the Garden of Eden are open to mankind if we but go in."

Mr. Anderson told the Rotarians that Rotary had reduced religion to a practical basis and brought it into the business world.

A military demonstration at Fort Benning was presented for the visitors today.

Benning was presented for tors today.

Field, Montgomery, Ala., participated in the maneuver.

Wednesday the Rotarians attended a banquet at which W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, was the principal speaker. The banquet was the final event of a busy day's program mapped out under the direction of W. E. Page, southeastern newspaper publisher and general chairman of the convention.

Following adoption of the resolutions, the clubmen rose and sang one of Mr. Allen's favorite hymns, "Blesf Be the Tie." Dr. Walter Anthony, pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, adjourned the session with

The pathway which practical Georgia farmers followed to successful and PROFITABLE farming is pointed out in a recent bulletin issued by the Georgia State College of Agriculture-presenting a thorough analysis of the Profitable Farming Contest of 1930, conducted by the State College.

There is INSPIRATION in it, for it shows by concrete examples that farming IS profitable. And there is aid and helpfulness in it, for it describes the methods that produced PROFITS for these Georgia farmers even in a year of drought and of falling

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT of farm operation, with the making of profits as its goal, was stressed in the contest. Careful day by day records, kept by all of the contestants, provide authentic proof that the methods they followed got the results

Life of Thomas A. Edison

BY DAVID WILSON. The Constitution and the N. A. N. A., Inc.) Chapter XI.

Light-Making Becomes a Business.

But the men he worked with, capitalists who provided the money and laborers who provided the work, alike found little of the impractical about him, though he was inventing things at a rate probably never surpassed by any other man.

any other man.

Late in 1880, when he had his carbon filament bulb developed to a practical point and was able to produce 90 per cent efficiency from his improved dynamo, Edison interested sufficient dynamo, Edison interested sufficient Gra capital to organize the Edison Electric ty, Illuminating Company of New York, ter the direct parent of all the Edison Electric Companies of today, and the god-parent of that whole network of der eity streets from a central station to paying clients in 1882. Had it been merely a task of erect-Had it been merely a task of erecting a plant to use one or two of his inventions, Edison would have left it all to others. But in this pet of all his pet projects he was starting from scratch, and he had to do everything himself. Nothing could be bought from any factory, for from generator to bulb everything was new, everything

Made at Menlo.

Few of his invented devices could be manufactured in established plants orders. Nearly everything, from namos, to switches was made at Menlo Park.

The steam engine, which ran the dynamos were, to be sure, of standard type, though Edison chose to make a few improvements. But the dynamos which made electricity were his: for example, the system of control and of wiring through underground conduits was his at a time when the streets of New York were cluttered with rows of overhead telephone, telegraph and of overhead telephone, telegraph and arc light wires; the methods of distribution to the offices and homes of customers were his; the feeder system to keep the volume of current constant was his; the meters to measure stant was his; the meters to measure the consumption were his; the plugs and switches in the walls, the incan-descent bulbs, all were his. Problem by problem, for nearly two years, Edison met and solved tremen-dous difficulties, and patents were is-sued at a rate of close to two a week. Not merely were there mechanical difficulties to be met. The sken-Not merely were there mechanical difficulties to be met. The skepticism of the public had to be overcome. The opposition of gas companies and especially of are light interests had to be met. The National Electric Light Association, a forerunner of the organization of the same name of which now is spokesman for the entire electric utilities business, was organized by are light sponsors to combat the Edison system.

Attorney's Error.

As if the other difficulties were not enough, an attorney of his legal staff sold to others 70-odd electric patents, and Edison had to divert his attention to finding new ways to accomplish the work of devices he himself had invented.

which were his due.

The technical details of the problems Edison solved so rapidly in these turbulent years of the early 80s cannot be discussed here.

That he succeeded in meeting them becomes more amazing the more detailed.

Through his attorney, John Verner, of Decatur, Lang issued a statement denying that he struck the girl.

HERTY COMPETITION

AWARDS ANNOUNCED

That he succeeded in meeting them becomes more amazing the more deeply the erection of that first central power station is studied. It was enough accomplishment for the life of any man, but it was only a way-station for Edison, though it was his greatest contribution to modern life.

As an example of the practical side Edison was developing his own story of the early manufacture of filament hulbs may be repeated. The Pearl street station was approaching comple-

The Edison company did not want to undertake the job, which involved several difficult hand processes. CHAPTER XI.

In the early fall of 1881 a curious visitor to an ancient loft building in Pearl street, New York city, which showed signs of great activity, might have seen a man stretched out on the undulating curves of sections of conduit stacked side by side in the basement, snatching a few minutes of sleep in the middle of the day.

The man's clothes were baggy and soiled; his face carried a heavy growth of beard. He looked, in sleep, little different from any number of bums who snatched sleep in basements and doorways of lower Manhattan.

If the visitor had been told this man was an inventor he might reasonably have nodded and expressed some trite opinion on the regrettable inability of inventive geniuses to do practical work in the materialistic world of the early 80s.

Through the long months in which the first central electric power station was being built, Thomas Edison saw little of his home and slept little in beds.

Little Impractical.

But the men he worked with, capitalists who provided the money and the contractive of the cost down to 37 cents, and I made up in one year all the money I had lost previously. I finally got the cost down to 22 cents and sold the bulbs for 40 cents. There were a condition on the regrettable in beds.

For once, Edison was prepared to desert his haven at Menlo Park, N. J. The company was Edison, and Edison was the company, from the day of its organization until electric power was furned on to run for the first time under city streets from a central station church worker, class of 1905; Miss Nell L. Means, Atlanta schoolteacher and student of the Emory Extension school, and William M. Murray Jr., Marietta, a member of the present junior class, specializing in chemistry.

ACTION ON CHIEF TONIGHT DOUBTFUL

Little probability that council's po-lice committee will consider ousting of Chief of Police James L. Beavers and selection of a successor at tonight's session was seen Wednesday.

Mayor James L. Key is due back at his office this morning following a speaking engagement at Jesup, but unless he and members of the committee agree in a committee agree in a conference on Beavers that the matter will be deferred.

Alderman Alvin L. Richards, chairman of the committee, said Wednesday he expected no developments at

But the inventor, without engineering training, accomplished the engineering training, accomplished the engineering feat that engineers would never have tackled. It was known at the time, and has been fully perceived ever since, that the hard purpose of the allies, led of course by France and backed up by Great Britain, Belgium and Italy, was to make Germany an imprisoned and pauper nation. That was to be effected by economic chains and fiscal blood-draining.

Clemenceau, the "Tiger of France," worked to strip Germany and lash her through a hundred years as the arch-criminal of civilization who had sought again to destroy his beloved France. He wished to make her impotent for any such enterprise another time in rious financing, to keep up their con-nections between the food mills an the feeding tables of their countries At Versailles the allied powers be gan a new order of international economics. It was believed, however, that they were about evenly divided. The line of de-marcation is not very keenly drawn, the factions differing only on minor

Great significance was seen in a statement by Stanley Baldwin, conservative leader, who declared yesterday's results showed a national and ot a party victory.

Although Mr. Baldwin did not go into the part the conservatives will play in the house of commons sched-uled to hold its first session Novem-

"The effect on foreign opinion cannot be overestimated. The overwhelming support given to the national gov-ernment will resound through the world and re-establish confidence in word and re-establish confidence in the stability and the greatness of our country, Democracy has justified it-self in a most striking fashion."

Mr. MacDonald and Chancellor of

This was shown most clearly, Mr. MacDonald said, by the fact that both J. H. Thomas, national labor, and Sir Herbert Samuel, liberal, both of whom are members of the national vernment, were returned by their

In a spectacular campaign the prime minister, waving millions in worthless German marks before the miners' wives, reduced the problems of national government to those of cottage housekeeping. He said Britain must make both ends meet. And he warned the workers that their shillings would go the way the mark went during the German inflation period unless Britain made its money secure.

The conservatives have a reminder that their big representation in commons is not built on too solid foundations in the popular vote east yesterday. They polled 11.780,487, while labor totaled 6,749,944. Thus, with only twice as many ballots as labor, the conservatives gained 10 times as many seats in the house.

Although generally stunned by the results of the election, labor leaders point to the almost 7,000,000 votes as the beforck strength of the movement. Words of sympathy from Mr. MacDonald came as a bitter dose to many of them.

"This is not the end of the labor party," the prime minister said in a message to the Scaham voters who gave him his victory. "It will rise again but only with new leaders who have vision and courage.

"But it must be based on a citizen's and not a class outlook. This defeat of the labor party will be for its ultimate good, if its lessons are learned."

"In view of the continued implication of his fearlessness and courage which pervades all public utterances of Senator Glass, it is certainly to be expected that the above-mentioned 18 charges will be printed in the editorial columns of the papers controlled by him, the papers assuming full responsibility for said publication."

GLASS TO LEAVE BISHOP IN HANDS OF U. S. COUP" LYNCHBURG. Va., Oct. 28 .- (A)

Senator Carter Glass tonight issued the following statement in reply to Bishop Cannon's threat to sue the News and Advance, local newspapers published by the Virginia senator:

"Apparently for consumption by the Virginia annual conference of the Methodist church in session at Norfolk, a year ago, Bishop Cannon instituted suit for the modest sum of $5.000.0000 against a certain page. $5,000,000 against a certain news-paper publisher for alleged libel. Col-lection on account being a little tardy, commentator said today:

"No prime minister faced such a task as Mr. MacDonald will have trying to persuade his team of political race horses, cart horses and mules to remain in the middle of the road or even to continue hitched up to the same political caravan."

Although the house of commons will meet November 3 for the swearing in of the new members, no parliamentary business will be undertaken until the formal opening by the king November 16.

FIGURE IN BRITAIN Fate of Ramsay MacDonald. Because of his visit to President Hoover two years ago, the prime minister is probably better known to America than any other British statesman. Word of his election was communicated immediately to Secretary Stimson, personal friend of the prime minister and his closet co-worker in making successful the London naval conference last year. As bitter-end free trader, the Lloyd George group has taken a firm stand against a protective tariff and there also was some doubt as to whether it would co-operate with the national government in other matters. Only five of the 70 newly elected liberal members, however, are regarded as adherents to the Lloyd George standard. Of the remainder, the dominant

The demand then appeared to have been well supplied, and the market weakened in the last hour under increased southern selling combined with liquidation or reselling by some of the earlier buyers and some selling for Wall Street account. All months made new lows for the day in the late trading with December selling off to 6.60 and March to 6.81. Closing quotations were at the lowest.

Liverpool cables said hedging had been absorbed by continental buying and trade calling in that market and reported fair sales of cotton cloths to the British home trade and China. Exports today 77.846 making 4.317.269.

NEW ORLEANS PRICES MOVE TO LOWER LEVEL.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 28.-(A)-Cotton prices fluctuated freely today, Cotton prices fluctuated freely today, but wound up slightly lower. After declining a dollar a bale in the morning on weakness in stocks and fears of an increased government crop estimate, the market rallied sharply in the afternoon, gaining nearly $1.50 a bale from the lows. All the advance was lost at the end, however, the close showing net declines for the day of about 50 cents a bale.

Short covering and a bullish feeling over the British elections outcome were factors in the rallies. Hedge selling helped the declines.

Liverpool is due tomorrow unchanged to one penny point down on New Orleans.

Foreign and United States government issues provided conspicuous expensions.

Foreign and United States government issues provided conspicuous exceptions to the general trend. Loans of the federal government were especially active in the latter half of the session and closed generally, if moderately, higher.

Gains in foreign loans ranged from fractions to 6 points, but the movement, even in this group, was not uniform.

Raifroad bonds scored many of the larger losses, following the weakness in carrier stocks. Chicago, Burlington & Quincy general 4s, St. Paul 5s of 1975 and of 2000, Colorado & Southern first 4 1-2s, Erie 5s of 1967 and of 1975, several issues of Missouri Pacific 5s, several New York Central and Nickel Plate loans, Pennsylvania general 4 1-2s and Series D sylvania general 4 1.2s and Series D 4 1.4s and Southern Pacific 4 1.2s of 1981 were among the more active and weaker carrier bonds. Note the important roles taken by these intermediates in the subsequent play of the hand.

Against the contract of three notrump, West opened the highest card of his partner's bid suit, the nine of spades. When the Dummy went down, both East and South made it the object of thoughtful consideration. East, when he noticed that the Ace of diamonds was missing from the Dummy, was certain that he was without a sure card of re-entry. If he was to defeat the contract, he must be able to bring in his spade suit and not content himself with only 2 tricks in that suit. He, therefore, rightly refused to win the first round of the suit. From his failure to win this trick, South win the first round of the suit. From his failure to win this trick, South was able to draw the inference that his hand lacked a sure, or even a probable, entry outside his bid suit. Upon this basis he planned the play and proceeded to put the plan into execution. Winning the first trick with the spade Queen, he led the two of hearts and when West played a low card, he played the eight in the Dummy, taking the double finesse against the King and Knave of hearts. When the eight spot held the trick, he then laid down the Queen of diamonds which East refused to cover and continued with the Knave hoping to catch the Ten and Ace in West's hand. When the Ten fell on the second round the sage of diamonds was catch the Ten and Ace in West's hand. When the Ten fell on the sec-ond round the seven of diamonds was led and overtaken with the nine, East holding fast to the King.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Four years ago I was engaged to a man who was transferred to another town where he met a girl and married her. Since that time I have been afraid to see much of any man for fear of falling in love with him and having anfear of falling in love with him and having another heartache. A recent experience has made me suspicious of myself. For two months I have been seeing a man who appears to be in love with me. He hasn't mentioned marriage but preity soon he will, if I know the signs. I respect him, and am never so satisfied as when he is around. I get no pleasure out of anyone else, by comparison, but there is not the same thrill of the joy in this association that there was in the first, rather contentment and quiet happiness in his presence. Is it because I am older or is it that I care less for him?

ANXIOUS.

ANNWER:

No two people elicit from us the identical reaction because no two people are identically alike. There are men of a lively type who keep women on the "quivivre" and placid men who have a soothing influence. There are moody men who are first up and then down, and steady choice. There is a very enlightening article in September's Forum by Dr. Wolfe, director of a mental hygiene clinic in a large city church. It is captioned "Romance vs. Marriage." Says he: "Marriage will continue to be unhappy until we remove the fallacies of the ompipotence of romantic passion from the thought vocabulary of our children. The world suffers from a plague of romance. Of mature love, a critical shortage exists."

Here is your trouble. You are triyng to imbue a mature and solid affection with the romantic passion of early youth. It cannot be done and need not be done. Friendship, the comfortable sort that enables one to be content in the presence of the other, friendship that is so perfect that it robs other relationships of their charm when compared to it, that is the best basis for life partnership. Anything else must of physical necessity lose its charm. Anything else must of physical necessity become jaded. But the friendship between a man and woman who love each other is the miracle of beauty and grace that outlasts the years.

Disposable Tissues

Your handkerchief during colds may carry 4,000,000 living germs—a men-ace to yourself and to others, unless you use this tissue you can destroy.

THE common handkerchief is now known to be an almost believable source of danger during colds. Germs not only live but grow in the ordinary handkerchief. Often damp, kept in pockets at body temperature, the handkerchief is an ideal breeding place for dangerous organisms.

These germs are carried to your nose and mouth each time you use your handkerchief. They're spread through the air, they contaminate laundry bags and clothing.

Use Kleenex - destroy

There's safety in Kleenex. Kleenex is a gentle tissue that comes in conent squares, handkerchief size. Made of rayon-cellulose, Kleenex is softer than a linen handkerchief. But here's what's important:

Kleenex costs so little that each tissue may be destroyed after a single use! Dangerous germs are destroyed before they have a chance to re-infect you. Every handker-chief that touches your face is absolutely fresh and clean. And there's no laundering. What a relief there's no laundering. What a relief to escape from this repulsive work!

Kleenex is particularly valuable

Some one knocked at the door. She recognized the shuffle of the doorman's carpet slippers.

"Miss Corbin, Mr. Graham and Mr. Fitzroy are here."

"All right. Tell them I'm coming."

Irma stood upon another balcony.
This one was secure. It overhung the dance floor at Bill's Palais de Danse.
The tango contest which had been directly responsible for bringing her theatrical career to an abrupt end had been a huge success. Irma, however, had been unable to enjoy any portion of it. She felt cold and heavy hearted. The train had gone, carrying Tommy and Philippe away and leaving her behind. She had intensely disliked them both, but they were familiar annoyances in her life like cold dressing rooms and bad coffee. It was terrifying to picture a future with strange annoyances in it. dressing rooms and bad coffee. It was terrifying to picture a future with strange annoyances in it. For the first time since she had met them Bill and Wallace appeared to her as they really were. People who amused her, who were kind to her but with whom she had no real bond of understanding. Her careless, homeless mode of living had toughened her. Her personal contacts had taught her more of people than these complacent businessmen would care to know or even hear. They were pleasant, but they were strangers.

were strangers.

Curious how at home she had felt with Thrace and with these men while there had been the theater and the act and Garchester looming ahead.

Now everything was different. She was stranged in a strange town among strangers.

"Certainly. Way had a suspected that you wouldn't have me, and I guess it's just as well. You're probably a wife at heart."

"Probably."

Wallace came back to them then.
"The Carlsens," he explained, "are was strangers, and talkative. Awfully nice people.

She wondered what it would be like to be head hostess at the Crystal Moon. Probably very tiresome and exasperating. Her eye lighted on a fat man. She thought with horror of teaching him to waltz. Still once she got accustomed to the strangers it would probably prove more pleasant than working for Phil.

Bill looked over and observed Mr. Carlsen tossing crisp, dry moodles at one of his guests. "I can see that for myself," he commented. "Lord, you're sour, Bill," Wallace said. "I'm tired. Come to think of it. I don't want any chow mein. See you both tomorrow.

Bill came up and slid his arm about her waist. None of the patrons could see them as they stood in the dim blue light on the balcony.

"Gimme a little kiss, baby."
Irma stepped away from him.

"No."

"Why not?"

"Browner I'm gains to mark wal.

"Because I'm going to marry Wallace Graham."

"O." He peered at her sharply in the faint light. "You just decided that, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Do you know why?" He plunged on without waiting for her walls.

"Yes."
"Do you know why?" He plunged on without waiting for her reply. "You decided that because I came up to you and spoke like a fresh drummer. I said, 'Gimme a little kiss baby,' just no little kiss."

"And?"
"And my answer's yes, if it's all right with you."
"If it's all right with me? O, you show it was all right with you. That was just a sort of a figure of speech." "You decided that because I came up to you and spoke like a fresh drummer. I said, 'Gimme a little kiss, baby,' just as though I was the redfaced guy in the North Dakota territory whose car had broken down and you were the farmer's daughter. I was crude. I could have had you then, too. Your mind is hopping in circles, sister, you'll do what seems the least repulsive. They're playing 'Samson et Delilah' in waltz time. Pretty, isn't it? The lights are dim and I'm not looking bad in their charritable glow. I should have folded you in my arms and kissed you gently and said just the right thing. I'd have had you then."

Maybe tomorrow I'll say the right thing. But I really came up to say how about some chow mein, little one?"

Bill's avalanche of words set Irma wondering. Was he right? Had her whole life been altered by his crude approach? Could something as important as that be determined by such unreliable forces as man's speech and attitude? If this was so, then surely the world was run in a slipshod manner.

PRIEST AND CADETS.

The priest in his cassock and gown, with five cadet acolytes by his side, took their places in the line of march ahead of the artillery caisson on which the casket was placed. A trooper swung into line a black-draped, riderless horse with Sheridan's boots set backwards in the stirrups.

From the church came Sheridan's parents, his brother, Gerard, and his sister, Mrs. J. L. Herman, all of Augusta, Ga., to take their places in automobiles behind the casket. Behind were Albie Booth, captain of the Yale team; Mal Stevens, his head coach, and Professor Selden Rose, chairman of the Eli athletics board. Into the graveyard the caisson rolled, the band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and gently the cadets brought the casket of their comrade to his grave. Company I, his own company, fired three volleys into the air. The bugler sounded "Taps."

Only then did Mrs. Sheridan, who raced from Augusta to New Haven to reach the stricken young star's side three hours before he died Monday, show public signs of weakening. She had not been strong enough to attend the requiem mass, restricted to Catholic members of the corps and Sheridan's family, this merning. As the last notes of "Taps" died away, she slumped forward and had to be helped away.

The cadet corps formed again in the cemetery. Officers barked sharp commands. Sheridan was left behind them. The corps was "carrying on."

ATHENS, Gar, Oct. 28.—Thirty Georgia students plan to charter a box car and go to California and back when the Bulldugs play the Trojans out there on December 12.

Yes, sir, they plan to ship themselves out-it will be the first actual shipment of football fans on the hoof in the history of the game. They can go at $11 the copy.

The plan is one of economy. The railroad fare out there is prohibitive, unless the student's pappy is one of those free-handed fellows who owns the general store at one of the towns near by, or is president of the bank. The railroad fare is cheap enough for the grown-ups, maybe, but not for the undergraduates.

The idea is catching hold with such violence that there may be two boxes full of Georgia fans when the fast freight is started for California. If the railroads are smart, they will fall in with the idea. There are plenty of empty box cars on all the sidings.

The plan was being discussed with deserved avidity in Gus' soft drink place this afternoon when your correspondent paused to absorb a glass of Georgia's national drink, one with lime.

"Shucks," said one of the boys, "it will be a cinch. Why, during the war the French used to put 40 hommes in one of their dinky little box cars. And those guys had a lot of impedimenta, such as rifles, packs and overcoats.

Marist plays Commercial at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Spiller field, and Decatur plays Russell at 7:30 o'clock Friday night at Decatur in the only prep games for local fans this week.

Tech High and Boys' High will hold their final workouts of the week this afternoon in light signal drills at Piedmont park.

The Smithies have won six games, including three over sectional champions of last year. They have scored 161 points against 45 for the opposition, and, with one exception, appear to be in good physical shape for the game Saturday.

The Charlotte game will be the turning point of the Tech High schedule, and certainly the touchest assignment on the card, Coach Claude Tolbert said Wednesday night. Charlotte defeated Tech High, 33 to 0, last year in the Smithies' worst defeat of the season, and is reported to have another strong team.

Coach Tolbert will take approximately 30 players on the trip.

OLD RIVALS.

Commercial and Marist are two of the keenest rivals in the N. G. I. C., and the grudge dates back to the beginning of athletic relations.

Marist, with two victories and one tie, will seek revenge for the 13-to-6 defeat of last year by Commercial. The Typists won the game by a sideline march that netted more than 60 yards and a touchdown.

ABOUT BILL CROOM.

The night before Georgia played Carolina at Chapel Hill, Chuck Collins, the husky Tarheel coach, sat in a hotel room, talking over old times with Harry Mehre in the true spirit of Notre Dame. They were old college chums, and Harry and Chuck talked on a variety of topics. The subject of Collins' team came up, and subsequently the name of a halfback called William Croom.

"I'm gaing to play him tomor-

"I'm going to play him tomorrow only because he can kick 28

The next thing Bill Croom did was to race 53 yards to a touch-down, and his third and final act of the day was to throw a forward pass that put the ball on Georgia's 5. Harry Mehre stared coldly across the field to where Chuck Collins was heinrich to Line.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 28.— With Captain Mouse Leonard and Jess Thomas definitely out with a broken hand and a pulled tendon, Vandy for the second successive Sat-urday will face a Georgia rival with half of its backfield strength inactive. Leonard, Thomas and Close were useless against the Georgia Bulldogs. Close should be ready to take his place at the quarterback post against Tech, but he is not likely to be in perfect condition.

In case he is a casualty, the Commodores will again summon Tommy Henderson, the midget back, whose punt returning and quick kicking elevated him from the ranks of the substo a proud perch.

COMMODORES FAVORED.

There is a feeling that the Commodores should win from the Jackets, even though they cannot use all their cannoneers. But there is also a feeling that the Commodores must again learn the art of scoring before they can be seriously considered.

Rated as one of the most powerful offensive teams in the south a short time ago, the McGugin forces have been shut out by Georgia and Tulane, a feat no other conference teams ever accomplished on successive Saturdays.

The Vandy naving gene once its accomplished on successive Saturdays.

The Vandy passing game, once its greatest asset, no longer is formidable. Mouse Leonard was showing symptoms of developing as a ball heaver before he was stricken in the Carolina game. Not until Tommy Henderson gave his superb toe exhibition against Georgia has the Vandy kicking been satisfactory.

PORFETTS AND FORTINE.

ROBERTS AND FORTUNE. Dixie Roberts and Chuggy Fortune will both be in condition or the Tech tussle. Roberts started off with a roar, scoring four of the eight touchdowns against the Kentucky Teachers in the opener. Since then he has simmered down considerably, making only one score. He was crippled for a time, but is in shape now.

It also was the fourth casualty to Tech's line this season. Homer Stalnaker and Warner, guards, have been forced out for the season with leginjuries. Then came Clingan and Ezell.

injuries. Then came Clingan and Ezell.

The latter's hurt is less serious, however, and he should come around by Saturday.

The Jackets started scrimmaging yesterday against Vandy plays at 4:30 p. m., and it was 6:20 p. m. before Coach Alexander called a halt.

The Tech coach was very displeased with the way Grey Devil backs gained at will. Galloway and Black were recruited for the Grey Devil backfield, and, with the aid of Little Eddie Hall, ran up four touchdowns against the first-stringers.

Hugh Gooding has been promoted to the varsity in an effort to bolster the backfield. The varsity backs yesterday were Flowers, Hart, Barron and McArthur.

A change may be made in Tech's starting lineup for Saturday.

Vandy plays worked like magic against the Jackets yesterday. Another look at them will be had today, for Alexander is far from satisfied with the defense of his boys.

Robby Receives Brooklyn Check

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Oct. 28.

(P)—Wilbert Robinson, who was replaced by Max Carey recently as manager of the Brooklyn Robins, said today he had received a check for $10,000 from the club directors as a token of their esteem and for his long service as manager.

He said also that he had received a telegram from a New York newspaper asking him if he were to become connected with the Pittsburgh Pirates, but had received no overtures from Barney Dreyfuss, head of the Pirates. Robinson said he had been having a good time fishing near his winter home here and had no plans for going to the east at any time soon.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 28.—Georgia went through one of the best workouts of the season this afternoon in a scrimmage with the freshmen.

It was the last workout before the Florida game. The Bulldogs will work lightly Thursday afternoon and leave at 7 o'clock for Florida. The entire varsity squad will be taken along as Mehre has some men who are not in the best of condition.

The exciting part about this contest of football to offer.

The exciting part about this contest is the fact that both Cornell and Columbia have greater strength than either has known in years. That 1930 Cornell array had a lot of class, and the 1931 delegation is even stronger. You won't see many backs as valuable as Viviano, one of the leading stars of the season. And in the same way, you won't peer at many backs who can do as many things as ably as Ralph Hewitt can handle his assignments. Hewitt had the better of their duel a year ago, but this is another test.

If the Columbia line holds up according to *specifications, Cornell will have a busy afternoon "above Cayuga's waters." Whatever happens, this should be one of the best games of the day that closes out October's schedule, and there should be a swirl of backfield action with so much ability lugging the leather back and forth or pegging it through the breezy autumn air.

The team that wins this game will have put through one of the big jobs of the year and will also have one of the tallest hurdles out of the road.

seriously. "Even though they may not win the football game."

There is an impression here, however, that the old Florida jinx will he murder in cold blood this fall. The Bulldogs are going along well. The Vanderbilt game did not take a great deal out of the Bulldogs. The linement ment suffered most of all. It seems that the Commodore linement really played a football game down here. End of the session this afternoon in which the varisity scored three touchdowns, according to Harry Mehre's count, found the coaches rather more than pleased. The blocking had been better than usual and so had the defensive work, although just how it could be better than it was last week against Vanderbilt is a mystery.

The theory that there are not any limited before big jobs of the year and will also have one of the big jobs of the year and will also have one of the road.

Two Good Lines Meet Saturday

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 28.— Two powerful and colorful lines will clash in the Carolina-State game at Raleigh Saturday afternoon, with the outcome likely to hinge on the way outcome likely to hinge on the way one or the other team can gets its revamped backfield to traveling.

Carolina's line strength stood undoubted after last Saturday, when the Tarheels held Tennessee's conference leaders to a lone touchdown, and bottled up their All-American McEver so thoroughly, with Fysal, McIver, Underwood and the ends leading the charge. But looking at the other side, Carolina has another offensive thrust halted on Tennessee's 5-yard line, and State failed once on Catholic's 1-yard line.

Coach Collins especially is tromping on the accelerator. The Tarhee mentor knows a Tarheel let-down would be fatal for the State game, and is drilling three backfields while and is drilling three backfields while planning a smashing ground attack. REDUCED RATES

In accordance with the spirit of the times, we have revised the tariff at The ROOSEVELT. There has been, of course, not the slightest reduction in the standard of service which we offer our guests. The same personal comfort, attentive helpfulness, and hospitality in keeping with our Colonial setting are to be found, as always.

We believe that with our reduced tariff these advantages will be deably appreciated by our patrons . . . Single rooms at $4.50, $5, $6, $7 and $8. Double rooms at $6, $7, $8, $9 and $10; with twin beds at $8, $9, $10, $12 and $14. Suite-parlor and one or more bedrooms-at $15, $20 and $25. Special concessions will be made, as usual, to those making a prolonged stay.

3 DELIGHTFUL DINING ROOMS

No dining room in the world surpasses the Hendrik Hudson Room in dignity and rich simplicity. Its Colonial architecture, setting off N. C. Wyeth's famous paintings of early New York, adds mightily to your enjoyment. The Colonial Restaurant, open all day, with its authentic period furniture is deservedly popular. And the Grill, where Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadian dance orchestra play nightly except Sunday during dinner, supper after the theatre, and Saturday afternoons, is one of New York's well known attractions.

By Dillon Graham,

Associated Press Sports Writer. Duke University's football supporters are wondering if the fine defensive tactics employed by Wallace Wade's team this year will be successful against Tennessee in Knoxville Sat-

The Blue Devils have been scored upon but once, South Carolina crossing their goal for a single touchdown in the opening game. Since then Duke played Davidson a 0-0 tie and won from Villanova, V. M. Duke's offensive, built around Kid Brewer, now the south's leading scorer, has improved with each game, and Wade will depend largely upon this fullback for any touchdowns he expects against the Vols.

BREAK of DAY

A SCHNAUZER IS WELCOMED.

Your correspondent brought along a Schnauzer pup to Athens. When registering at the hotel the dog was brought up as a prospective guest.

"Young man," said the manager, looking the Schnauzer straight in the eye, "will you go up to that room and drink a quart of booze, put lighted cigarets on my furniture, throw glasses and pitchers out the window, and yell all night?"

"Oh, no, sir," said the Schnauzer, "I never touch a drop, and I wouldn't dare think of throwing things out of the win-

"You are welcome," said the manager. "Why don't you come over on some of the big football trips? I will always be glad to give you a room."

MIXING THEM UP.

Now, honest, Jimmy, it was being fine to Athens, but what NEYLAND WORRIED.

Coach Bob Neyland, of Tennessee, whose team now leads the Southern conference with four victories, doubtless is worried by Duke's air-tight defense. The Vols received a scare last week when North Carolina held them to a 7-0 win, and that touchdown following and the touchdown following the past season, received 78 points out of a possible 80. His closest rival was Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees, who received 59 points. Gehrig won the award in 1927.

Mack Star Second Pitcher To Win Award. Gehrig Runner-Up.

Rainderphia Athletics has been adjudged the American league's most valuable player.

Robert Moses Grove, sometimes called the greatest southpaw pitcher in history, receives the distinction for 1931. His battery mate, Mickey Cochrane, was chosen in 1928.

The slender left-hander with the fast ball is the second pitcher to be called "most valuable" in the 14 years the awards, official and unofficial, have been made. Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" of the Washington Senators, received the distinction twice, in 1913 and 1924.

It was just a breeze for Grove when a committee of eight members of the Baseball Writers' Association cast their ballots, The Athletic ace, who set an all-time record by winning 31 games and losing only four during the past season, received 78 points out of a possible 50. His closest rival award in 1927.

Al Simmons, of the Athletics, batting leader of the American league, finished third with 51 points; Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder, was fourth with 43, and Babe Ruth, who received the award in 1923, placed fifth with 40.

Nat Grossman. star N. Y. U. back, has a brother, Jack Grossman, who is the star back for Rutgers. When the two teams met at the Polo Grounds recently, Mrs. Grossman, the boys' mother, sat with the Rutgers students for one half and with the N. Y. U. student body for the other.

A similar incident is recalled when the Callahan brothers went to different schools at the same time—Yale and Princeton.

And don't forget the story about Shaw Buck, young Florida back, shaking off 12 tacklers and running for a touchdown. One of them undoubtedly must have been one of his own teammates.

After all it seems that the fears of "The Yale Daily News" that the old Yale spirit was dying were not entirely groundless. As I recall it, "The Daily News" chided the undergraduates severely for the listlessness of their cheering during football games, particularly the game with the University of Georgia.

Instead of accepting the warning and whooping it up in the matter of cheering, the Yale undergraduates seemed to take the admonition in a spirit of levity. At the Yale-Army game last Saturday the cheering still seemed somewhat apathetic. I believe that "The Yale Daily News" still seemed somewhat apathetic. I believe that "The Yale Daily News" characterized the Yale cheering section as "mummies in the bowl."

My first reaction to this was somewhat in the nature of "What of it?" But since that time I have been talking with Professor Art Folwell, who had studied considerable Roman history. He points out to me that the history of Roman sports indicates that when the cheering becomes apathetic the sports decline.

He shows that the Coliseum, which once was a livelier place than the Yale bowl and staged a greater variety of sports, now is a mere ruin.

Professor Folwell is convinced that this was brought about by the failure

Professor Folwell is convinced that this was brought about by the failure of the Roman cheering sections to maintain their enthusiasm. When the cheering became purely perfunctory and the cheer leaders lost their pep, that was the beginning of the end.

I gather that there must have been no end of fun in the good old days when the Romans had the real enthusiasm that makes for sport. The acoustics of what is left of the Coliseum are still good. It must have been what the boys call a "blood-surging" scene on Saturday afternoon, as one approached the old Coliseum and heard the cheering for the lions in the game between the lions and Christians.

One could hear from any of the seven hills of Rome the strains of the University of Rome's marching song, dedicated to the lions:

"Good night, poor Christians,
You're out of sight;

We've got your number, Christians, good night. Come on, you lions, We've got a hunch You'll have some Christians Hashed up for lunch."

About this time the emperor would enter the arena and take his seat in his box. The University of Rome's cheer leaders rould turn flip-flops and somersaults and call for a long cheen

And, from what I can gather from the faded parchments, the cheering was neither perfunctory nor half-hearted. When the old Roman boys started cheering they put their lungs into the work and the cry would rise:

"Break their necks with an ax, an ax, Roar for gore, get some more. Hear us screech, 'He's a peach. Who's a peach? Nero!'"

Of course, I do not maintain that the old Roman cheers had any greater literary merit than the cheers of some of the modern universities. was not the quality of the cheers that made the Coliseum what it used to be. It was the spirit of the old Roman cheering section, a spirit which, alas, seems to be entirely lacking in these days THE OLD ROMAN SPIRIT.

In the old days when the old Roman spirit really was alive, these games at the Coliseum drew vast crowds and there was some incentive for the training of lions and the capture of Christians. But later the interest began to lag. Great thinkers of the period, men like Seneca, saw at once that the lack of enthusiasm for the great old Roman sport was due to apathy on the part of the cheering sections.

He mounted the stand at the forum and addressed the lagging cheering sections with passionate eloquence. He demanded to know how they could expect the lions to do their best on the Christians, who were getting tougher and tougher every year, unless they got some encouragement from the undergraduates.

"Anybody can see," he said, "that the lions are getting discouraged and listless performing for a lot of mummies in the Coliseum. The old Roman spirit is dead. Even some of the predecessors of Nero could see that. And Nero is getting plumb discouraged trying to train good teams of lions when there is no enthusiasm.

But, apparently, the words of Seneca fell upon deaf ears. At New Haven "The Yale Daily News" said frankly that the Yale spirit was dead and it made no impression whatever. I think that Seneca predicted that unless there was some response to the plea the time would come when a team of Christians would out-chew a team of lions, with the result that the classic Christian-Lion contest would be abandoned.

Apparently, what Seneca predicted eventually came to pass. There has not been a Christian-Lion game at the Coliseum for centuries, and the Coliseum is in very bad repair.

So you see that a sport lasts only as long as the cheering. CHEERS AND PROSPERITY.

Of course, the apathy in the matter of cheering is not confined to the Yale bowl. I get it from reliable sources that the cheering at other stadia is decreasing in volume and this, as we have seen, is an alarming

As far as I know, the Coliseum was paid for long before the sports that were held there started to decline, with the natural result that the gate receipts fell off. Conditions are different in some of our modern stadia. A large majority of them have not yet been entirely paid for.

If the cheering subsides and the gate receipts decrease there will be considerable difficulty in lifting the mortgages on some of the modern college stadia. You cannot lift the mortgage on a college stadium unless you have gate receipts, and it has been shown that if the cheering falls off the gate receipts decrease accordingly. If the bonds on some of the college stadia find a new low level it will add to the general depression

Sion.

Consequently I regret now that I took the warning about the death of the old Yale spirit so lightly and that I treated with levity the warning of "The Yale Daily News" in regard to the cheering. I did not know at the time that it had such an important bearing on the current financial problems.

I am now disposed to second the motion that the Yale undergraduates start cheering at once and keep it up in the attempt to restore prosperity. Good cheer leaders backed by good cheerers might do it. They have tried everything else.

perity. Good cheer leader have tried everything else.

Otherwise, the Yale bowl a few centuries from now will be as deso-late a spectacle as the Coliseum at Rome.

A naval tug made a vain race to take him to hospital. The injuries were beyond repair and he died this afternoon.

William van Dresser, whose portraits will go on exhibit next Sunday at the High Museum of Art for two weeks, is shown here with three typical examples of his excellent work. He has just returned from Germany where he painted many of the Passion Play actors. The portrait of Peter Nicolaus of the Order of St. Benedict, spiritual adviser of young Passion Players for 35 years, is seen at the left. On the right is Guido Mayr, who portrays the Apostle Judas at Oberammergau. Gloria Swanson, famed motion picture actress, is at the bottom. IEX-BEAUTY'S DEATH REPORTED FROM PARIS

Josie Mansfield Was Central Figure in Tragedy of 1872.

NEW YORK. Oct. 28.—(P)—The Sun today reports the death in Paris of the former Josie Mansfield. over whose affections Jedward S. Stokes shot and killed the financier, James Fisk Jr., on January 5. 1872, in one of the most sensational murders in New York's history.

At the time of her death she was Mrs. Helen Josephine Mansfield Reade. A dispatch from Paris gave her age as 78, but The Sun says she probably was several years older than thar.

Fisk, who had built a house for Josie Mansfield, his sumptuously dressed and dazzlingly beautiful mistress, was shot on a staircase of the Grand Central hotel by Stokes, an oil speculator who had become Fisk's partner and had stolen Josie from him.

The shooting was attributed to a jealous enmity that had grown up between the two men. Stokes was convicted of murder and sentenced to die. But through influences he had formed in association with "Boss" Tweed, he obtained a new trial and escaped with four years in prison. Josie went to Paris within a year after the murder. She volunteered to testify for Stokes, but he refused. With an elderly woman supposed to have been her sister she lived for decades in a modest house off one of the Paris boulevards.
